CHANGES TO INFOCALL (190) - INTRODUCTION OF MONTHLY SPEND LIMIT

We are introducing a monthly spend limit on calls to InfoCall services to help protect you from unexpected high bills that some customers may experience from use of these services. For this reason, on and from 1 October 2005, use of InfoCall (190) information services will be subject to a default spend limit of $550 (incl GST) per calendar month for each fixed and mobile service (unless Telstra has individually notified you otherwise). Charges for making calls to InfoCall services with a prefix 19025 (i.e. mass calling services such as 'voting' type services, which are often used for television and radio competitions) and surcharges for making calls to InfoCall services from a mobile will not contribute to the monthly spend limit for your fixed or mobile service. Once your spend limit for InfoCall calls from a fixed or mobile service has been reached, access to all 190 information services (including mass calling services) will be restricted from that service for the rest of that month. It is possible for you to be charged more than your per service monthly spend limit in a limited number of circumstances (e.g. if you exceed your monthly spend limit for a fixed or mobile service during a call, you will be able to complete the call). In these circumstances, you will still be responsible for all charges incurred.

For more information, please call Customer Service on 1800 035 055.
